Particulars of reasonable grounds

SC Jarnet's suspicion was based subjectively on the following matters, which also indicate the suspicion was reasonably held:

- i. The Plaintiff was at a large music festival in the mid north Coast of New South Wales, which was a geographic location associated with relatively common recreational drug use.
- ii. His awareness that a warrant had been granted permitting general drug dog detection at the music festival and that, typically, such warrants were granted after provision of police intelligence information including the history of drug detections at the particular festival in previous years.
- iii. Seeby gave a positive indication that there was a prohibited substance in the airspace around the Plaintiff.
- iv. His assessment of Seeby's reaction to the airspace around the Plaintiff, including the extent of Seeby's reaction and the location on the Plaintiff's person where (if anywhere) Seeby was the most focussed.
- v. His awareness that Seeby was an experienced drug detection dog who had passed the Drug Notice Course for new drug detection dogs with (then) Constable Jarnet in 2012, and her annual re-qualifications for each of the years thereafter, in addition to further training including training in in odour reinforcement and people screening (2013).
- vi. His prior experience working as a drug detection dog handler with Seeby for approximately 6 years prior to this event, including various music festivals.
- vii. His assessment of the Plaintiff's conduct on approaching the entrance.

- ix. Further particulars may be supplied following the State's evidence.

- (e) says that SC Petrie also spoke to the Plaintiff;

- (g) says that, at some point, the Plaintiff said words to SC Jarnet and/or SC Petrie to the effect of “I had a smoke with a joint this morning”; and

Particulars of reasonable grounds

SC Petrie’s suspicion was based subjectively on the following matters, which also indicate the suspicion was reasonably held:

- i. His prior police experience in drug detection.
- ii. The Plaintiff was at a music festival with a younger demographic, which, in his experience, was an environment where it was common for people to possess and supply prohibited drugs.
- iii. A drug dog gave a positive indication that there was a prohibited substance in the airspace around the Plaintiff.
- iv. The plaintiff said words to the effect of “I had a smoke with a joint this morning”.
- v. His assessment of the plaintiff’s demeanour, physical appearance, body language and answers to questions.
- vi. Information from the drug dog handler about the plaintiff’s interaction with police.
- vii. Information conveyed by way of pre-festival briefing regarding the use of drugs at the festival.
- viii. Further particulars may be supplied following the service of the State’s evidence.

28. In response to paragraph 28 of the FASOC, the Defendant:

 - (h) says that the Entry Points of each Tent faced the inside of the Police Search Area; and
 - (i) otherwise denies the paragraph.
29. The Defendant denies paragraph 29 of the FASOC.
30. In response to paragraph 30 of the FASOC, the Defendant:

31. In response to paragraph 31 of the FASOC, the Defendant:

 - (d) says that SC George told the Plaintiff her name, place of duty, and reasons for the exercise of the search power;

Particulars of reasonable grounds

SC George's suspicion was based subjectively on the following matters, which also indicate the suspicion was reasonably held:

- i. Her own prior experience working at music festivals and in general duties, searching people on the basis they were suspected to have prohibited drugs in their possession or under their control.
- ii. That the plaintiff was at a music festival known for supply and possess offences and attracting a younger demographic which, in SC George's experience, attracted drugs of several different kinds, including pills, cannabis, cookies and LSD.
- iii. That a drug dog had given a positive indication that there was a prohibited substance in the airspace around the plaintiff.
- iv. Information supplied by other officers who had interacted with the plaintiff, including the officers' observations, the plaintiff's demeanour and behaviour, and any words spoken.
- v. Her assessment of the plaintiff's demeanour, physical appearance, body language and answers to questions while they spoke outside the Tent.
- vi. Further particulars may be supplied following the State's evidence.

- (b) denies (to the extent it may be alleged in this paragraph) that the Plaintiff's first interaction with SC George was inside the Tent; and
- (c) otherwise admits the paragraph.

34. The Defendant admits paragraph 34 of the FASOC, save that it says these words were spoken earlier and outside the Tent, rather than inside the Tent.

35. The Defendant does not admit paragraph 35 of the FASOC.

36. The Defendant admits paragraph 36 of the FASOC.
37. In response to paragraph 37 of the FASOC, the Defendant:
- (a) says that, in conducting an ordinary search of the Plaintiff, SC George quickly ran her hands over the Plaintiff's outer clothing in accordance with s 30(a) of LEPR; and
 - (b) denies that SC George ran her hands over the Plaintiff's skin.
38. In response to paragraph 38 of the FASOC, the Defendant:
- (a) says that SC George was lawfully authorised to ask the Plaintiff to remove her shoes pursuant to s 30(b) of LEPR; and
 - (b) otherwise does not admit the paragraph.
39. In response to paragraphs 39 to 53 of the FASOC, the Defendant:
- (a) says that SC George was lawfully authorised to carry out a strip search of the Plaintiff pursuant to s 31(b) of LEPR because SC George suspected on reasonable grounds that a strip search was necessary for the purposes of the search and that the seriousness and urgency of the circumstances made the strip search necessary;

Particulars of reasonable grounds

SC George's suspicion that a strip search was necessary for the purposes of the search was based subjectively on the following matters, which also indicate the suspicion was reasonably held:

- i. The ordinary search had not yielded any prohibited drugs in circumstances where SC George had formed the view, based on the matters set out in the particulars to paragraph 31 above, the plaintiff's behaviour during the ordinary search, any further admissions made by during the ordinary search, and/or where on the plaintiff the drug dog had indicated, that the plaintiff was likely to have drugs in her possession.
- ii. Her assessment of the extent to which the plaintiff's clothing or hairstyle would allow for a prohibited drug to be concealed even during an ordinary search.
- iii. Further particulars may be supplied following the State's evidence.

Particulars of seriousness and urgency

SC George's suspicion that the seriousness and urgency of the circumstances made the strip search necessary was based, subjectively, on the following matters:

- i. The health risk to the plaintiff if she went on to ingest a prohibited drug.
- ii. The health risk to others if they ingested a prohibited drug brought into the festival by the plaintiff.
- iii. If SC George did not conduct a strip search of the plaintiff now, she would not have another opportunity to search the plaintiff before the plaintiff or someone else ingested any prohibited drug on the plaintiff's person, or the plaintiff disposed of any prohibited drug in a way posing risk to others (for instance, by dropping it on the ground).
- iv. If SC George did not conduct a strip search of the plaintiff now, there was a limited opportunity for other police to detect any prohibited drugs on the plaintiff once inside the festival, and/or before the plaintiff or someone else ingested any prohibited drug on the plaintiff's person, and/or before the plaintiff disposed of any prohibited drug in a way posing risk to others (for instance, by dropping it on the ground).

SC George's suspicion of seriousness and urgency was reasonably held on account of the following matters:

- v. The matters set out immediately above as to SC George's subjective state of mind.
- vi. The seriousness at law of certain offences for drug supply and/or possession.
- vii. History of recorded drug possession, use, supply and overdoses at the Splendour in the Grass festival in previous years.
- viii. Further particulars may be supplied following the State's evidence.

(a) denies that, if SC Jarnet is found to have tapped the Plaintiff on the shoulder, this constituted a battery;

(b) says that tapping someone on the shoulder to get that person's attention is a form of physical contact "utterly without fault" as part of the ordinary conduct of daily life;

(c) denies that the ordinary search performed by SC George constituted a battery on the basis that the touching was lawfully justified by s 21 of LEPR; and

- (a) says that the words “most music festivals” and “substantial detachments” in paragraph 68A.1 and the words “primary means” in paragraph 68A.2 are embarrassing;
- (b) says, regarding those paragraphs and under cover of the above objection, that:
 - (i) New South Wales Police Force officers attended a number of music festivals in the period between 22 July 2026 to 21 July 2022 for the purpose of, among other things, minimising the risk of harms associated with the use of prohibited drugs by attendees;

 - (iii) sometimes, police officers conducted strip searches as part of those investigations;
- (c) says, in relation to 68A.3, that:

- (d) says, in relation to 68A.4, that:
 - (i) the paragraph employs concepts that are embarrassing (including “practice or pattern of conduct”, “as a matter of routine” and “not in circumstances lawfully justified by the provisions of LEPR...”) and require for their interpretation reference to be made to particularised matters including paragraphs 15, 16, 17 and 18 of the FASOC and certain reports by the Law Enforcement Conduct Commission (LECC) and the NSW Coroner, none of which specify, adequately or at all, the “practice or pattern of conduct” (etc.) in which the Defendant is alleged to have engaged; and
